A PLUCKY GIRL'S ACHIEVEMENT.

Secures Her Brother's Liberty

After Three Years of Work. Cleveland Leader: Kate L. Kennedy is the name of a brave Ohio girl who is just about to reap the reward of her devotion, in the release of her brother now serving a life sentence in Indiana. The crime of which the brother was convicted was committed November 1, 1884. General Logan addressed a great mass meeting at Greensburg, 1nd., and during the jam David Baker, a leading lawyer, was shot dead while chasing a crook who had stolen an old farmer's pocketbook. A reward of $1,000 was offered and a week later young Keunedy was arrested at Cincinnati. The boy was a pet at home, and sickly, he had hardly cut loose from the apron strings, but the Greensburg people demanded a victim and he was promptly con-victed, chiefly as the jurymen have since acknowledged on his reputation as a hardened thief and criminal. This was brought about largely, it is be-lieved, through the fact that his initials "W. W." were identical with those of a certain well-known horse thief. He was railroaded in a week or two. The testimony identifying him as the man who fired the shot was indefinite. Only one witness did so positively. Kennedy at that time was extremely boyish in appearance, six feet tall and very slender. Dozens of people wit-nessed the tragedy, and had be been the man his singular appearance, run-ning and shouting would have been so impressed on their mind that identification would have been easy and complete. But he was convicted and sen-tenced to imprisonment for life in the Indiana penitentiary south, at Jefferson-

The boy's father was a steamboat engineer, and he had a sister, a striking brunet, employed at a big dry-goods es-tablishment. As soon as sentence was pronounced this sister threw up her place, and set out to work to clear her brother's name and secure his release, and for nearly three years she has devoted her life to the labor of love. Her first work was to go over to Indiana to look for new evidence. She enlisted the services of the sheriff of Decatur county who had become convinced of her brother's innocence during his con-finement in jail. With his help she discovered men, almost by chance, who had seen the shooting, and whose description of the man that did it differed absolutely from the appearance of Will-

was killed, was positive the man was wholly unlike Kennedy, and created a sensation by saying that the man who did the shooting was the recorder of Decatur county, Mr. Moulton. That officer proved his innocence, however, and Mr. Dickinson's testimony gave Miss Kennedy a clue which has proved invaluable. She has found the double of Recorder Moulton, and he has been identified. The judge, prosecuting witnesses, the prosecuting attorney, the sheriff and deputies and the entire jury with one exception have signed petitions and written letters to Governor Gray, stating that the new evidence discovered has made it clear to them that Kennedy is innocent, and that he was never sufficiently identified to war-rant conviction anyhow. And besides this there is a lot of letters from reputable in Cincinnati testifying to Kennedy's good reputation. The minor bits of evidence are almost convincing of the boy's innocence, and it is believed that Governor Gray will grant the sister's petition for pardon at once.

The brave little woman has had a varied existence during the years of search. She has been given aid from almost every quarter. But on the other hand her life has been endangered a dozen times. She has masqueraded in men's clothing and gone into hell holes, low groggeries, thieves' resort and all sorts of places. She made several trips to Dayton, O., in man's attire and discovered important evidence, She has gone about as a bootblack, as a newsboy. and in every possible guise, seeking in-formation, and has succeeded beyond her anticipations. Her investigations have been car-ried on in three states. In Indianapolis she struck an important clew, and while there was shadowed herself by others who suspected her. By a ruse she became acquainted with thieves who knew the real murderer of David Baker, and became informed of their plans for future robberies as well as concerning jobs that had come off in the past. In this way she has been able to almost certainly locate the man who actually committed the crime. All this time the young woman has worked on the most limited allowance of funds. The amount of the living money at home has been cut down to the lowest sum that she might have funds to pay

TEQEUSQUITE. A Little Mexican Village Has Some Sensations.

WAGON MOUND, N. M.,—[Special Correspondence of the Kansas City Times.]—The little Mexican pueblo of Tequisquite, in this territory, has had two important sensations within a year, and singularly enough the same family has furnished both.

It was a lovely morning last July when Santiago Sanchez Gallegos disnounted from the patient burro he had seen riding across the prairies from Puerto de Luna since sunrise, at one of the little springs about a half mile from Tequusquite. Kneeling down he refreshed himself with a long draught and after doing so, stood up, grambled a few curses at the slowness of his animal and then literally fell to pieces. First his right arm, then his left, then his ears and nose. To be brief, in a few moments where he as a whole had been standing, Santingo in fragments covered the ground. A few hours later a couple of sheep herders who were driving their flocks to water came upon the dismembered remains. Horrorstricken at the sight, they abandoned their herds and fled to the village, piously crossing themselves all the way and at intervals calling upon "El buen Dias" and "Santa Maria" to protect them from the evil one whose foul work they were sure they had just left behind. The simple people were soon aroused and in an alarmed state hurried to the residence of the padre. He assembled them in the little adobe church in the center of the village, bid the sheep herders tell their story and when they had finished, he promptly arose and prenched an able sermon in which he santiago had perished through the visitation of God as a just punishment for refusing to pay tithes to the church and padse. He forbade anybody to visit the spot where the unfortunate man had died for forty days. At the expiration of that period, a procession, headed by the padre and an alcolyte bearing a vessel of blessed water, which was plentifully sprinkled all along the route, march to the spring. All they found there was a few whitened ones and the spring had dried up. Back to the church marched the pro-cession, another discourse in which the dried spring was alluded to in support of the padre's assertions, and the mat-ter was allowed to drop. But it was a hardy Mexican who would pass by that spot after nightfall or refuse to contribute whenever levied upon. This was the first sensation, though the facts have only just come to light. The second happened two weeks ago.

A merry wedding party were assembled at the house of Dolores Baca one ovening and as usual with weddings.

evening, and, as usual with weddings, festivities were progressing finely when Pedro Gallegos, the fourteen-year-old on of Santiago, drew his revolver and without warning or cause shot and in-stantly killed the bridegroom as he was in the act of drinking a toast to his bride. Another Mexican interfered and the young desperado fired what shots remained in his revolver at him. He died in a few hours. Both murders were effected so suddenly that before the people recovered from the surprise the murderer mounted his horse, which was standing saddled outside the house and escaped. No effort was made to capture Telford Dickinson, who was within a him. The house of joy became one of truth of the adage that "Death lurks at a wedding feast," was proven in this instance. ing along the trail through Tequesquite, and by the dried spring they found the dead body of Pedro Gallegos. Almost on the same spot where his father had so singularly died the son was now dead without a mark or trace of any kind to show how he met his fate. The padro has declared that this was a just retribution, and that he died from a visitation of the devil. This was the second Immigration is rapidly driving the natives out. Excursions will soon run to this point from Kansas, and it will not be long before the American contingent here holds the balance of power. A bitter fight will be made by both factions at the polls this fall.

The ranges are all crowded to their utmost capacity. In fact some are overstocked, but if the winter holds mild cattle will be good in the spring. It is a fact that the seasons have underwent a change of late years, and instead of a wet and dry season we have rains early in spring, through the summer and late in the fall, something unknown five cears ago, and of importance to the stockmen, as it does not necessitate artificial irrigation to any extent. Farming and fruit raising are rapidly becoming staple industries and exports instead of imports in these branches are now the order of things, some extra fine productions going as far east as Win-field, Kan. The old wooden plow and yoke of burros with which the natives used to till the few acres of corn have been discarded for improved agricultural implements, and large farms and orchards meet the view the further off
